"IN THE GREASE"

Notes Gleaned While the Oil Editor Bumps Around Proven Territory

George F. Getty, failing to land a fish on his well at Carson and Ivy streets, has torn down the derrick. The rig has been taken south of Carson street for a new location, offsetting which Chanslor-Canfield has staked out Torrance No. 38.

The Biltmore Oil company's well, north of Carson street and east of Cedar, is being watched closely. It is down about 3600 feet. On the outcome of this well depends the decision of the Star Petroleum corporation on its Carson street well, south of the Biltmore location.

Superior is contemplating abandonment of Osborne No. 1 on account of water trouble. Bowles No. 1 in the 4070 tract has already been abandoned.

Superior's well on the Joughlin lease on the old Redondo road (east) is down 3800 feet. The derrick on this well recently burned down.

The Superior Oil company landed water string on Torrance No. 13, near the glass factory, at 3750 feet. No. 12, near by, has been abandoned and the derrick torn down.

The McKeon Drilling company has presented Sam Levy with a quit claim deed on his lots on Carson street, just east of Superior's Shedd No. 1.

Universal is setting tubing on Jones No. 1, south of Federal's Gerner No. 1, Narbonne and Elgin.

More trouble for Julian. Having receive a shutoff O. K. on Julian No. 2 at Cherry and Eshelman streets, the hole caved at the bottom, shortly after the Southern California Drilling company had blasted its well near by in an endeavor to sidetrack. The latter company plans to skid its rig.

Chanslor-Canfield will make a pump test on Torrance No. 20, near Arlington avenue and Plaza del Amo. All other derricks in this vicinity have been dismantled.

The Santa Fe still has hopes of an oil well at the corner of Carson and Cedar streets, opposite Superior's Shedd No. 1. The crew is balling. The well has been making oil by heads and the water percentage is said to be much lower.

Why not come and get acquainted with a crowd of good people who will endeavor to make you at home? We know if you come to our services you will be enthused and enjoy yourselves. Our evening song service with its old-time Gospel songs and Mr. Green's evangelistic sermons is worth going miles to hear. In order to provide adequate fire protection for the district south of Plaza del Amo, the board of trustees Tuesday night authorized the city engineer to proceed with plans for the construction of a six-inch main out Arlington street and along Camino Real, so that six new fire hydrants may be placed on these thoroughfares. The Torrance Water, Light and Power company has agreed to share half the expense of installation, which will be somewhat over $3000. TRUSTEES

Roy Winters complained to the board that motorists are speeding on Carson street and Susana avenue. He called attention to the fact that oil company cars and trucks are breaking traffic laws, to the danger of children and pedestrians. The complaint was referred to Chief Anderson.

Chief Anderson was instructed to place signs on 220th street, calling attention to the fact that heavy traffic is not allowed on this thoroughfare. Oil company trucks have been using the street for hauling heavy loads.

Trustees Tuesday night granted to the Gla's company a franchise for the use of area over Border avenue for thirty years. The company paid the city $800 for the franchise, which gives the company the right to construct a building over the street without interfering with traffic on the highway.

The ordinance creating school stops on Carson and Arlington streets did not pass second reading Tuesday night, but was held up pending further investigation into the advisability of establishing the stop zones. Trustee Zeller called the attention of the board to the fact that the school stops, having been tried in Los Angeles, may now be discontinued.
